Happy Holidays

THROUGH SNOW, SLEET, ET AL

The postman brings us letters, and the postman takes them away. And if we think about mail delivery at all, it is usually in the event of some confusion or delay—results, perhaps, of our own poor use of the postal system. Every University staff member depends on the University mail service and therefore has good reason to use it properly. A great deal of work has gone into making the service unobtrusive and efficient; our contribution is neither time-consuming nor bothersome, and it is helpful.

There are several ways of assisting the University mail service. Since the service guarantees three-hour delivery for properly addressed campus mail, where “properly addressed” means including the recipient’s name, room number, and building, we can help to ensure that the guarantee is upheld by including all the necessary information on mail we send to others on campus. This inclusion will speed sorting. (Of course, before outgoing mail is picked up it should be separated according to whether it is on- or off-campus, and off-campus mail that is to be metered should be kept separate from mail that has been stamped.)

Mail leaving the campus is handled by both the University mail service and the federal Post Office. When the University mail service was being planned, the federal Post Office was consulted about mutual concerns; transportation of mail between the two is now very efficient, but the time taken by the federal Post Office to process off-campus mail would be cut if federal postal codes were used consistently and according to form. In the

APPOINTMENT

J. Brian Caunt has been appointed Director of Personnel Services and Staff Relations, effective 1 January 1977. Mr. Caunt is currently Associate Director of Personnel Services; he has held that position since 1971. Before joining the University staff, Mr. Caunt worked for a number of firms: from 1952 to 1954 he worked for CNR; from 1954 to 1956 he worked for Coca Cola Canada Limited; and from 1956 to 1970, he was Personnel, Safety, and Training Supervisor and Industrial Relations Assistant with Texaco Canada Limited. Mr. Caunt received his Bachelor of Commerce degree in 1969 and his MBA in 1971, both from this University. During the year prior to his appointment as Associate Director of Personnel Services and Staff Relations, he was a Research Assistant in the Faculty of Business Administration and Commerce. (No photo available.)

main address the postal code should be either the last line of the address or on the same line as the city and province of destination; in the latter case there should be a two-character space between the province and the postal code, and in either case the postal code should not be lower than three-quarters of an inch from the bottom of the envelope. Postal codes should also be used in the return-address portion of the envelope, to encourage others to use the code when they reply. If mail coming into the University were to use postal codes the need for preliminary sorting here would be eliminated because each University building has its own postal code and, therefore, mail could be sorted directly according to destination. Now, since most mail comes in marked with one of the two University slush codes, T6G 2E1 and T6G 2E2, it must go through two sorts, first by route and then by individual destination.

The University mail service is constantly trying to improve itself. Recently for example, it began to employ a computer to help the auditing of metered mail. Auditing used to be subject to human error, but the computer has almost eliminated error and has greatly reduced the time spent on accounting. Again, to instruct its users about its mode of operation and that of its federal counterpart, it offers presentations each year, including two films, one on the University service and one on the federal service. These presentations were attended by between six thousand and seven thousand people early this year and will be made again next February.

The hard work pays off: not only is the University mail service respected for its efficiency by other groups involved in mail delivery, but also it is praised for its cooperation with its users. J. Baldock, Marketing Manager of the Alberta Postal District, Canada Post, recently wrote to Lyall Foulston, Distribution Manager here: “A note of appreciation to you and the Law Department for the excellent ‘make up’ of the ‘Law Review’ mailing Wednesday November 25th.” The mailers of the Law Review included the postal code of the recipients on every one of a huge number of copies of the journal, which were thus machine-sorted by the Post Office, rather than hand-sorted, and so delivered much sooner. But when the postman is sorting and delivering mail on a tight schedule, praise is probably less important to him than the speed and efficiency with which he can get his job done, and that depends on our cooperation.

UNIVERSITY JOINS EDUCATIONAL CABLE CONSORTIUM

The University has entered into an agreement with Athabasca University, the Sherwood Park Separate School System and the Edmonton Separate School System to form the Edmonton Educational Cable Consortium (EECC). The EECC was organized to distribute educational television programs on cable Channel 13 and to encourage more and better use of educational television.

The Faculty of Extension is providing the University’s programming during the Consortium’s first year of operation. On 7 December, the Faculty began broadcasting “Starting Your Own Business,” an eight-part series designed by Donald Weideman, Associate Professor, Faculty of Extension. The broadcast programs will be followed by a one-day seminar for persons who enroll in the course.

On 1 February, an intermediate level broadcast course in English as a second language will begin. The course is being produced by the University’s Department of Radio and Television in cooperation with Bill Jopling, Coordinator of Technical Services and acting head of Radio and Television, and Marylu Antonelli of the Faculty of Extension represent the University on the EECC Board of Directors, which is made up of two members from each of the four participating institutions.

EECC is on the air thirteen hours per day, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Operating cost to the Consortium for broadcast time is approximately thirty dollars per hour. Individual member institutions bear the costs of obtaining or producing their own tapes. The very low figure of thirty dollars has been made possible by the cooperation of ACCESS, Quality Cable, and Capital Cable. ACCESS has provided substantial assistance to EECC in procuring and testing head-end equipment. The head end is located at the Edmonton Separate School System's Service Building, 10734 - 120 Street.

ENTOMOLOGY LABORATORY

In honor of the late Brian Hocking, Chairman of the Department of Entomology from 1954 until his death in 1974 and internationally recognized authority on insect flight and on the control and behavior of mosquitoes and blackflies, the University's entomological laboratory will now be known as the Hocking Entomological Laboratory. Currently located in a temporary building west of Athbasca Hall, the Hocking Entomological Laboratory will eventually be moved to the proposed but delayed new building for the Faculty of Agriculture and Forestry.

Dr. Hocking was born in London, England, in 1914. He held a BSc (Honors) and the Associateship of the Royal College of Science, an MSc from the University of Alberta, and a PhD from the University of London. Dr. Hocking came to this University in 1946 as an Assistant Professor, after serving during World War II as an entomologist with the Indian Army. During his time here, his reputation as one of the world's leading entomologists grew, and he is credited with making the Department of Entomology one of the leading centres of graduate training and research in the world. In 1968, he was awarded a Fellowship of the Royal Society of Canada, and he was the recipient of the Entomological Society of Canada Gold Medal in 1973. Locally, Dr. Hocking was a consultant to the City of Edmonton and was a designer of high-school biology programs. He also served on scientific panels of organizations such as the Defense Research Board of Canada and the World Health Organization. Dr. Hocking was also interested in, and committed to, making biology and entomology more accessible to the layman. He made numerous public appearances, published a number of articles, and wrote three books aimed at the non-science public: The Ultimate Science: A Layman's Account of Biology, Biology or Oblivion, and Six-Legged Science.

The Hocking Entomological Laboratory is a continuing and fitting tribute to Brian Hocking's contribution and dedication to this University and to the discipline of entomology.

FROM MURRAY COOKE— TO ALL UNIVERSITY STAFF

The following note has been received from Murray S. Cooke, retired Director, Personnel Services and Staff Relations.

I wish to express to you all my grateful appreciation for the retirement function and presentations made on that occasion.

"Retirement" in the context of leaving the University and the many associations I have been privileged to enjoy, cannot be described as a happy event for me. However, I am able to look forward to it with reflections and memories of a most pleasant and gratifying almost-twenty years.

Whatever achievements and/or successes that might be credited to me have been the result of the cooperation and support of "staff," and I am most appreciative.

NOTICES

PATIENTS WANTED FOR ORAL PROPHYLAXIS

The School of Dental Hygiene is accepting patients for oral prophylaxis (cleaning of teeth) and applications of fluoride, for children and adults. Please call 432-4151 for an appointment.

ALLIANCE FRANCAIS

The Alliance Francais, a non-profit organization, offers courses in French at all levels to both adults and children. For further information telephone 487-6819.

THE TROPICAL DISPLAYHOUSE

One of the most restful and colorful corners of the campus is the Department of Plant Science Display Greenhouse north of the Cameron Library. Approximately 150 genera are represented, some having up to twenty species. Among the plants of general interest are banana, coffee, pomegranate, fig, bamboo, ginger, and avocado.

Tropical plants serve a great many useful purposes for different sections of the University community. Fine arts students come in the winter to draw and paint them; taxonomy students make use of the great variety in their study of plant relationships; plant pathologists have found nematodes useful for teaching; plant biochemists make use of the various pigments, and plant physiologists use plants or parts of plants for demonstration in labs.

The greenhouse is open to the public from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. every Sunday and has received visitors from all over the world.

DIAL-A-DIETITIAN

Dial-a-Dietitian is a public service carried out by the Alberta Registered Dietitians Association. The service allows persons to call 439-4442 (an answering service) and ask questions about nutrition, planning adequate meals, purchasing, storing, or handling of foods, food labelling and additives, preparing and cooking of new convenience foods, and similar topics. Within forty-eight hours, a volunteer registered dietitian will call back with the researched answer to the question.

The purpose of Dial-a-Dietitian is to provide the public with an authoritative source of nutrition information. The service is free of charge to all Edmonton and area residents. Dial-a-Dietitian operates from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, holidays excepted.

COURSES IN ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

The English Language Program given by the Faculty of Extension consists of a series of courses in English as a second language at the intermediate and advanced levels. Ten different courses, nine of which are forty-hour courses and the tenth a thirty-hour course, in addition to a special thirty-two hour course in Medical Terminology for foreign students, are available in the fall term and again in the winter term. At least five forty-hour courses are repeated in the spring term as well.

During the year of 1976, forty sections of the English Language Program were given with a total registration of 523. In the same period, an English language test, the results of which can be converted to TOEFL equivalents, was administered to 617 people.

HINDU CULTURAL CENTRE

Tax-free donations are being solicited for the construction of the Hindu Cultural Centre on St. Albert Trail and 134 Avenue. Over the past several years, a number of staff members of the University and of the Research Council of Alberta have been working to bring the Centre to the point where construction can begin in the spring. Funds are very much in short supply, however, and any donation, large or small, will be considered generous and will be highly appreciated. Please mail donations in cheque form to Ram K. Gupta, Educational Psychology, K.L. Mehra, Mathematics, or S. Chrakrabarty, Research Council of Alberta.

SUMMER CLASSICS COURSE IN ROME
For the eleventh successive year, the Department of Classics is offering a special summer course in Rome, Italy.

The course, Classics 459: Roman Archaeology and Civilization, runs from 6 July to 10 August and is conducted by R.C. Smith, Chairman of Classics. While the main part of the course is devoted to a study of the city of Rome, also included will be a survey of Italian classical history and the culture of the Etruscans. The course will include several field trips, among them a visit to the villa of Hadrian, two visits to the ancient port of Ostia, and an excursion to the famous Etruscan tombs. A trip to southern Italy will include visits to Pompeii, Herculaneum, Baiae, Paestum, Capri, Naples, Benevento and Taranto. Designed to allow students a first-hand opportunity of studying the culture and history of the area, the course will provide ample time for both private study and general sightseeing. Adults not currently enrolled in university will be welcome as special students. Classics students will also have the opportunity of hearing J.A. Forbes of the Department of Art and Design who will be conducting a summer course in the art of the Baroque in Italy. The two classes will join on two trips to the villa of Hadrian and to Palestrina.

For more information regarding Classics 459, contact Dr. Smith, Department of Classics, 432-3257.
